

COLLEGE PLANNING WEBSITES

There are thousands of sites available on the internet to help you with colleges – these are a few samples that are credible and reliable. You may find links to many more! Please share new ones (and your feedback) so we can continue to update this information for other students.

Thanks!

<http://www.collegeboard.com>

This is an excellent source for SAT and AP information. It has guides for parents, students and educators. You can see test schedules, get test prep and get scores here.

<http://www.collegenet.com>

This site will allow you to search colleges by specific criteria such as location, cost or sports. It has lots of information on scholarship and application issues.

<http://fastweb.monster.com/>

Take 15 minutes and register here NOW! This site will keep you posted of scholarship opportunities, writing contests, college offers, etc. Excellent source!

<http://www.collegeview.com/>

This site has a wide variety of information on colleges grouped by categories. It also has financial aid resources and career planning information.

<http://www.cfnc.org/>

This site helps you plan for college, find ways of paying for your college experience and even has links to NC colleges!

<http://www.collegebound.net/>

While this site tends to be more commercial with lots of “pop ups”, it does have some scholarship information and is fun to browse. Who knows? YOU might win if you apply.

<http://www.ncssm.edu/>

This is the official site of the NC School of Science and Mathematics in Durham. This is a public boarding school, free for those students who meet the strict admission requirements.

<http://www.princetonreview.com>

Highly reputable site. Info on choosing colleges, raising test scores, paying for college.

<http://www.petersons.com/>

This site provides all kinds of information on selecting schools, preparing for tests, etc. It also has some good links to other sites.

<http://nrccua.org/>

This official site of The National Research Center for College and University Admissions contains factual information about college admissions and careers. Look on the right hand side and browse down to click on the section for HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS - some good info there

Health Careers and Workforce Diversity

Eastern Area Health Education Center, Inc (Eastern AHEC)

2000 Venture Tower Drive (27834) ❖ PO Box 7224 ❖ Greenville NC 27835-7224 ❖ 252.744.5231